The present paper deals with the study of a fundamental solution in transversely isotropic thermoelastic media with mass diffusion and voids. For this purpose, a two-dimensional general solution in transversely isotropic thermoelastic media with mass diffusion and voids is derived first. On the basis of the obtained general solution, the fundamental solution for a steady point heat source on the surface of a semi-infinite transversely isotropic thermoelastic material with mass diffusion and voids is derived by nine newly introduced harmonic functions. The components of displacement, stress, temperature distribution, mass concentration and voids are expressed in terms of elementary functions and are convenient to use. From the present investigation, some special cases of interest are also deduced and compared with the previous results obtained, which prove the correctness of the present result.

Key words: general solution, fundamental solution, thermoelastic, voids, mass diffusion.

1. Introduction

Fundamental solutions play a crucial role in the theory of partial differential equations. They can be used to derive many analytical solutions of practical problems when boundary conditions are imposed. Fundamental solutions play a key role in an integral equation representation of a boundary value problem and are more easily solved by analytical methods in comparison to a differential equation with specified initial and boundary conditions. This type of situation (numerical methods technique) makes the subject more attractive mainly for these researchers whose interest is in numerical methods. The fundamental solution also provides a wonderful platform to overcome the main drawbacks in the boundary element method which also uses the fundamental solution to satisfy the governing equation. Consequently, we can say that with the latest technological demand, no boundary element method can be made more advanced without further developments in the area of fundamental solutions or in other words we can say that fundamental solution is the basis for many further works.

Ding et al. [1] constructed the general solutions for coupled equations in transversely isotropic piezoelectric media by using the operator theory. Dunn and Wienecke [2] derived the half space Green's functions for a transversely isotropic piezoelectric solid and also obtained closed-form expressions for the half-space Green's functions. Pan and Tanon [3] presented Green's functions for a three dimensional problem in anisotropic piezoelectric solids and also presented the applications. Chen [4] derived a general solution for transverse isotropic thermo-piezo-elastic media in dynamic as well as in static case and derived an exact
